

His son Charles Powell Leslie II took over the estate but died shortly before the year of the Great Hunger. His widow Christina ran the estate during the time of the famine. She was a very able lady and managed to feed all the people on the estate. She continued to run the estate most capably until her son Charles Powell Leslie III came of age. He had ambitions to build a Castle on the grand scale. His taste in architecture ran from 'Free Range Gothic' 'Early Taj Mahal' 'Late Fortschiffel' 'Babylonian Baroque' to 'Jacobean Woodsy'. One of his plans included a nine storied gothic tower in the middle of the lake reachable only by Venetian gondolas. Sadly for Charles but fortunately for Leslie family finances he choked on a fish bone before he could realize any of his major architectural fantasies. He died in 1871 and the building of a new castle was left to his brother John.

John Leslie (later to become Sir John Leslie 1st Baronet of Glaslough) was a fine painter of the pre Raphaelite school. It was he who at the insistence of his pretty young wife Constance built the present Castle in 1878. Sir John died in 1916 and Lady Constance in 1925.

Sir John Leslie 2nd Baronet married the delightful Lenore Jerome whose stunning elder sister Jenny married Lord Randolph Churchill. There are many of the Churchill's 'tandem-downs' in the castle as the Leslies were considered the poor relations. Lenore died in 1941. Sir John Leslie 2nd Baronet died in 1944.

Sir Shane Leslie 3rd Baronet, Irish speaker, author, poet and ardent nationalist became a Catholic and stood as Nationalist candidate for Derry in the 1918 election, losing by a mere 59 votes to the Duke of Abercorn. Sir Shane transferred the property to his eldest son John Norman Leslie who became the 4th Baronet. Owing to ill health from five years in a prisoner of war camp he made the estate over to his sister Anita and lived the next 40 years in Rome until his return to Castle Leslie in 1994 where he still lives.

Anita Leslie-King the biographer had a distinguished war career and was awarded two Croix de Guerre by General de Gaulle. In the 1960s she moved to Oronovo in Galway and made over Glaslough to her younger brother Desmond. Desmond, who is one of the few surviving wartime Spitfire pilots is also an author and composer of electronic music. In 1991 he handed the Castle over to his five children and the Castle is now run by his daughter Samantha and her partner Ultan.

Information

北岡泰典は、2010年の夏の欧州出張の一環として、20年近くの親交があり、北岡の英国の会社の名誉会長である英国貴族の方が共同所有するアイルランドのお城（レスリー城）に行ってきました。

この貴族の方はウィンストンチャーチルの親族で、このお城は、チャーチルが生まれ育った場所です。以下に、今回このお城で撮った写真を紹介します。5枚目の写真の産着は、チャーチルが着たものです。（写真にはありませんが、このお城には、ワートルローの戦いのウェンリトン公が使った馬の手綱も遺品として残されています。）

このお城の領地には狭山湖くらいの湖があり、また、ポールマッカートニーが再婚したときに結婚式を挙げた場所でもあります。子供の頃ミックジャガーもここでゴーカートを走らせて遊んだそうです。現在は、非常に盛況な四つ星ホテル／カンフェランスセンター施設として維持保存されています。

北岡は、以前にもこのお城に何回か招待されたことがありましたが、常々、ゴルフ、乗馬、魚釣り等が可能なこのような環境の施設で、日本のエグゼクティブの方々のための合宿ワークを開講したいと思ってきていました。今回の訪問の目的は、そのための現状施設の事前視察でした。

During his visit to Europe in the summer of 2010, Taiten Kitaoka visited Castle Leslie in County Monaghan, Ireland, which is co-owned by an aristocratic gentleman whom Taiten has been in a close relationship with for the last 20 years, and who is honorary chairman of Taiten's company in UK.

This castle with a huge lake is the place where Paul McCartney's second marriage was held, and the young Mick Jagger used to ride a go-cart around. It has been converted into a quite successful four star hotel and conference center.

Taiten had been invited to this castle a few times in the past. He has been thinking of holding workshops for executive people at the venue where one can play golf, go horse riding, fish on the lake, etc. He visited the castle this time to do a preliminary inspection of its current situation for this purpose.

Princess Anne upstages Lady Penelope!

Princess Anne on tour

WHEN Royalty visits even Lady Penelope doesn't get a look in. Our picture special by Mark Samons tells of Princess Anne's visit to International Rescue based in Woburn Green.

International rescue Corps received two special guests last week when Princess Anne and Japanese official Hiro Katsuzawa visited its headquarters at Glory Mill, Woburn Green.

Mr Katsuzawa officially thanked the team on behalf of the Japanese people and its government for helping after the country's recent earthquake and presented a letter of gratitude to the team's patron, Princess Anne, last Friday.

Since its conception in 1981 International Rescue has aided rescue operations throughout the world including a volcanic mud slide in Columbia and another earthquake in Turkey.

For Julie Blackburn, 28, the rescue mission to Japan was her first trip away and she was given the task of presenting Anne with flowers as she stepped from her helicopter.

Julie said afterwards: "She asked how did my employer feel about me going away. In the case of Japan I left a message on the answeringphone and she asked asked me if I still had a job."

The letter presented to the Princess Royal also acknowledged its countries inadequate civil and administrative system which will be reviewed in the future.

The visit was planned as unofficial but became official when the group said it was to receive a letter of thanks.

One of the corps founder members William McMartin, said the fact that Princess Anne had

Message to young people

So long as you know what you really want to do, the only thing that can interrupt you from achieving your goal is the idea that "it is impossible for me." The key to succeeding in life is to have optimistic confidence that makes you believe it is possible for you ? whatever anyone says ? and the commitment in which you are determined to sacrifice anything to realize what you really want.

Have the spirit of "leaping before seeing" and find what you really want to do. Go out of Japan and lift the status of Japan internationally and make Japan more active and lively.

I suffered from cerebral palsy when I was 4 months old and became partially paralyzed. I went through many traumatic incidents when I was young and had difficulty adjusting myself to society, suffering with PTSD (post-traumatic stress disorder) and borderline personality disorder.

So I was a troublemaker in junior high and got involved in left-wing student activism in high school. The counterculture, hippie culture and rock culture of America's West Coast influenced me when I was in high school and they shaped how I live.

It took me two years after graduating high school to enter a university and I repeated a year at university. I wrote my graduation thesis in French about Marcel Proust's novel "In Search of Lost Time." I think university days were the most barren time in my life.

Upon graduation, I went to the Sahara Desert and worked as a French language interpreter for three years. Then I became a disciple of an Indian guru and lived on the West Coast of the U.S. I moved to London when I got married.

I lived in London for about 20 years, working as a cross-culture communication consultant, coach, interpreter and translator. My clients during that time included relatives of Winston Churchill, Princess Anne, top management of F1, the Church of England. Meanwhile, I learned NLP (Neuro-Linguistic Programming), which is an approach of communication psychology, directly from its founders and gained qualifications. In that process, I overcame my own traumas completely. I came back to Japan in 2002 after getting divorced.

Next-Era CEOs in Asia

Entrepreneurs tap into growing Asian markets

The world was stunned by a report released in October 2003 by U.S. investment bank Goldman Sachs that predicted that China's economy would surpass Japan's by 2015 and the United States' by 2041. Many only half-believed the report, which also forecast that India would overtake Japan, the world's second-largest economy at the time, by 2032.

Today, nobody doubts the report. The actuality is that China's nominal gross domestic product is most likely to surpass Japan's this year (as it did during the second quarter), or five years earlier than the report predicted.

Another report, released in March 2008 by PricewaterhouseCoopers, the world's largest accounting firm, predicted that China will overtake the U.S. as the world's largest economy in around 2025. It also foresaw that India may have the potential to catch up with the U.S. by 2050 and will at least overtake Japan.

For Japan, these predictions may sound gloomy in that its economic standing in the world would erode, along with its political influence on world affairs.

Japan's trade policymakers do not think so, however. In their view, these forecasts should be taken as good news for Japanese businesses. The white paper on international economy and trade for 2010, issued by the Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry, said, in part: "Asia, which has recovered from the global economic crisis ahead of other regions of the world, is now getting attention not only as the 'world's factory' but also as the 'world's market.'"

According to the METI report in 2015, Asia, including China and Japan will have the largest share of the world's nominal GDP at 25.4 percent, compared to 23.8 percent for the European Union and 22.3 percent for the U.S. More importantly, the Asian region is predicted to emerge as the world's largest consumer market. Asia's overall personal consumption will reach $16.14 trillion in 10 years, higher than the $15.78 trillion in the U.S. and $12.67 trillion in the EU.

The METI report said that the fast-growing Asian economies and the resulting emergence of a giant consumer market in Asia will provide more opportunities for Japanese businesses.

Against such a backdrop, The Japan Times Crossmedia Department is launching the project 100 Next-Era CEOs in Asia 2010 to introduce promising businesses in key Asian markets and their CEOs to our readers.

Focusing on the leaders of innovative companies in China, Indonesia, the Philippines, South Korea, Taiwan and Thailand, as well as in Japan, this project brings readers detailed interviews with 100 CEOs about what their sources of strength are as they carve a path to

In the past, Taiten coordinated the design and presentation of a number of courses in Japan with myself and Ms. Carmen Bostic. His ability to think outside the box is excellent and his deep knowledge of both Western and Eastern philosophies gives an enormous depth and breadth to his understanding of Neuro-Linguistic Programming (NLP). He is qualified in both Classic Code and New Code NLP and has a long history of provoking, stimulating and guiding his students to an operational competency with respect to the patterns of both."

"It gives me great pleasure to write to you about my good friend Mr. Guhen Kitaoka.

I have known Mr. Kitaoka well for several years. Mr. Kitaoka has been a frequent guest at my family home, Castle Leslie, to which he has brought a number of Japanese intellectuals and dignitaries. I understand that the principal interest of the visiting academics was the fact that I am a cousin of Sir Winston Churchill, and at the castle we have a large archive, and a great deal of personal memorabilia at one time owned by him.

In December 1990, I travelled to Japan with Mrs. Paton, her brother and Mr.

Kitaoka, at the invitation of the Japanese government, to a number of cultural events. We were accompanied at all times by Mr. Kitaoka, whose humour, integrity and diligence made the visit a great success.

I cannot recommend Mr. Kitaoka more highly. He has, over the years, been a firm friend to whom I have introduced my family and a wide circle of friends.

Yours sincerely,

Tarka Leslie King

To whom it may concern.

Mr Guhen Taiten Kitaoka has been known to me for some thirty years.

During that time he has proved himself to be a man of the highest integrity and loyalty, offering advice and counsel to many distinguished people here in the United Kingdom.

As not only a counsellor but a friend he has offered his advice and helpful suggestions to me during the lockdown period of Covid 19. We have had a mutually beneficial conversation each Sunday for several years and I can say with some assurance that I perceive Mr Guhen as a man of vision and above all honesty, both professionally and personally.

Yours faithfully,

Guy A Clutterbuck
